Candidate Comments

13. Should a person's religious beliefs influence the decisions they make while serving in public office?

"Yes", would be one's typical answer since it is a far stretch to imagine how an individual might disregard their own religious convictions when considering decisions effecting life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness for everyone. However, "No", would be one's appropriate answer in view of the many issues that are not pertaining to "religious beliefs", but more aptly to the knowledge, wisdom, and understanding needed to ascertain the best possible governance of all the people being served. Therefore, one serving in public office should responsibly search out and weigh the impact of every issue with integrity, understanding, and knowledge in order to wisely balance one's religious beliefs with the effects the legislation has on the well-being of lives, and in doing so, not be persuaded by the "opinions or pressures from other voices" trying to influence their decisions.

14. Should North Carolina legalize the use of marijuana for medical purposes?

No, because marijuana is a mind-altering, potentially addictive substance and the medical benefits need to be unequivocally further determined. And, if legalized, needs to be a "Controlled Substance" like any other mind-altering, potentially addictive drug.
